

NEWS FROM OUR NEIGHBORS

MOUND CITY.

July 4, 1904.

Al Sulder, who was badly hurt yesterday by a buggy accident, is getting along nicely, although he is very sore about the shoulders and back.

Lawyer L. M. Bradley is in St. Louis.

Josh Childers and wife, of Mt. Vernon, Ill., are here on a visit with formerly-made friends.

Will Montgomery and his new bride have secured the Delaney cottage for a home.

C. L. Ross went to Union City, Tenn., today to visit his family for two weeks.

Miss Mabel Kennedy is indisposed. Mrs. Eugene Coulter, who has been visiting the great fair in St. Louis, has returned home.

Judge William A. Wall, accompanied by his interesting son, Master Warner, was at the great fair most of last week.

This section was benefited by a liberal shower of rain this afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Al Alliffe and from went to Grand Chain yesterday, where they visited relatives over the Fourth.

Will Kreitner, of Belleville, a Bell telephone employe, is here to spend the Fourth with his parents, Frank Kreitner and wife.

Miss Kate Schuler was the guest of Miss Fannie Calvin in Levings the greater part of the past week.

The lodge of Knights of Pythias lately elected officers, as follows, and on Friday evening the same were duly installed, to-wit: Pat Mathis, C. C.; John Condon, V. C.; Ed Sulder, M. W.; John Trampont, prelate; Will Read, M. A.; Ed Carson, I. G.; James Rushing, O. G.

On Friday Col. Mack Tanner ran down here and disbanded Company K, I. N. G., the local guardsmen. An internecine war that rages for many weeks in the organization, together with a red hot scramble for the commissioned officers—a war of personal abuse and scandalous charges and counter charges—is generally sufficient to disrupt anything that is of account.

Dead Men's Food in Yucatan.

From remote times the natives of Yucatan have been accustomed to make offerings to the souls of the departed, particularly a certain pie that they call "food of the soul." The crust must be of yellow corn; the interior tender chicken and small pieces of pork. These pies are wrapped in leaves of the banana tree and baked underground between hot stones. When done, they are placed on the ground or hung from trees close by. Sometimes, after leaving them there for an hour or two, the living take home the pies and enjoy them, saying that the souls have already drawn from them all the ethereal part of the substance.

Where Latin Is Still Spoken.

In the central part of the Balkans, far up in the mountains between Bulgaria, Servia and Turkey, there is a community of mountaineers among whom strangers seldom go. During the ascendancy of the Roman empire a Roman colony was founded here and then forgotten on account of its remoteness. For the reason that the descendants of those ancient colonists have never mixed with the people about them they retain their original characteristics, even to the language. In several villages the Latin that the peasants speak is so plain that students of classic authors can understand them.

Betrothed at Birth.

In some parts of west Africa the girls have long engagements. On the day of their birth they are betrothed to a baby boy a trifle older than themselves, and at the age of twenty they are married. The girls know of no other way of getting a husband, and so they acquiesce happily and satiated. As wives they are patterns of obedience, and the marriages usually turn out a success.

Aggravating the Offense.

"I've come to tell you, sir, that the photograph you took of us the other day are not at all satisfactory. Why, my husband looks like an ape!"

"Well, madam, you should have thought of that before you had him taken."—Women's Journal.

Not Too Blind.

Passerby—I thought you were blind. Mendicant—Well, sir, times is so hard and competition is so great that even a blind man has to keep his eyes open nowadays if he wants to do any business at all.

Mistaken Again.

"Our minister seems to be such an altruist," said Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Is he?" replied her hostess. "I thought by the sound of his voice that he was a bass."—Chicago Tribune.

Playing For the Future.

Mother—Johnny Jones, did you get that awful cold while out playing? Son—No, mother. I think I caught it washing my face yesterday morning.

Love at first sight supplies a lot of work for divorce judges.

WILLARD, ILL.

July 4, 1904.

Health in our burg is good. Lee B. Davis was in our burg Saturday and dropped in and gave us a Democratic tip.

Wheat threshing is in order. Seven steam threshers are shelling out the golden grain.

Wheat is the best in this neighborhood this year than it has been for 10 years. The average so far threshed is about 35 bushels to the acre, and we have the best prospect for corn. Crops were never so promising as they are all over this section. Everything is promising, even a good crop of Democrat votes.

We learn there was a fight and a shooting scrape on the river bank at Sheriff Roche's farm Sunday. The man felt hurt over the way Mr. Roche had treated him in wanting him to board his hands for $2 per week and he told Mr. Roche he could not do it for such a price, so Mr. Roche hired his father-in-law to board the hands and discharged Mr. Menada. We learn he went to his father-in-law's house and gave him a few jolts with the butt of his revolver skinned up another man and when the sheriff appeared on the ground he took a shot at him, but the sheriff followed him up and arrested him and ordered him taken to jail. Later we learned that there was something more that caused the greater part of the trouble. Women behind the screen. We don't vouch for this or any part of the story, it's hearsay, but later the courts will decide the case, after hearing the evidence. Ninety per cent of the trouble in all this land is direct or indirect from the cause of whisky and too by river crafts. If river packets have the right to dish out their devilish poison to our boys and men bootleggers are a credit to such lawful act.

The Shortest Twilight.

The period of twilight shortens toward the equator and lengthens toward the poles. In other words, the less the thickness of the air through which the rays of the setting sun have to pass the sooner darkness comes. From this it naturally follows that the region of the shortest twilight is the one which is situated nearest to the equator and at the greatest elevation.

These two conditions are combined in the region in which stands Quito, the capital of Ecuador. The plateau is 9,442 feet above the level of the sea. It is also surrounded by mountains, twenty peaks, eleven of which rise beyond the snow line, being visible from the streets of the city. Added to this, it is only fifteen miles south of the equator; hence it has a shorter twilight than any other spot on the equator partly because of the elevation and partly because the western mountain intercept the rays of the setting sun and so cause darkness to follow daylight with greater rapidity than at any other spot on earth.

The Garden of Eden.

According to the best authorities, it was in Armenia that the "garden of Eden" spoken of in the book of Genesis was planted. Most of the evidence in support of this theory is topographical. The Bible says that the garden was watered by a river running through it which afterward divided into four heads. The names of these are given as Pison, Gihon, Hiddekel and Euphrates. There is little difficulty about the latter, and Hiddekel is commonly identified with the Tigris, both of which rivers rise in the mountains of Armenia. The others are located by assuming them to be Aras and the Kur, streams which also rise in the Armenian hills. In old documents Armenia is often referred to as the "land of the four rivers" or "the cradle of the human race." Though Armenia does not go quite back to the time of Adam, the country's history is traced to its first ruler, Haig, the great grandson of Japheth.

Some Queer Definitions.

In the Bailey dictionary of 1674 the word "collus" is defined as follows: "Collus—a humming bird, which makes a noise like a whistling, though it is no bigger than a sparrow. It feeds on dew; has an admirable beauty of feathers and a scent as sweet as that of musk or ambergris."

The same authority thus describes the loriot, or o'lorie: "Loriot—a bird that, being loosed upon by one that has yellow jaundice, cures the person and dies itself."

Delpino's dictionary (1703) says of the leopard: "Leopard, or leopard—a yellow beast, exceedingly swift, subtle and fierce and of such a sweet savor that it allures other beasts to it, by which means they are caught and devoured."

Saloon and Hotel For Sale.

One saloon and half interest in another; also Uncle Joe's hotel, business and building are offered for sale. Apply on the premises.

Ventriloquism.

Ventriloquism is but the peculiar method of vocalization which, differing from the ordinary colloquial way of making articulations forward in the mouth, alters the directions of these sounds by so managing the conformation of the mouth and lips as to keep back the vocalized sounds and cause their utterance to be so muffled and hollow as to appear like sounds more or less remote. It may be described as the art of speaking in such a way as to cause a hearer to believe that the sound comes not from the person speaking, but from a different source. The sounds are formed by the same organs as the emissions of sound commonly—the larynx, the palate, the tongue, the lips, etc.

The art of the ventriloquist consists merely in this: After drawing a long breath the performer breathes it out slowly and gradually, dexterously modifying and diminishing the sound of the voice by the muscles of the larynx and the palate. Besides this, he moves his lips as little as possible and by various contrivances diverts the attention of his audience.

The Vital Element in Art.

Surely the vital question as to any creative work must be, What lasting effect does it have on him who has once come under its spell? That effect must always take the form of a more or less vivid and enduring impression stamped upon the memory by the greatest of artists, the imagination. Few may be able to recall that hour of delicious terror, doubt and hope, whether in the actual theater or curled up with the folio in the cozy corner, while we really wondered breathlessly whether Juliet and Romeo would at last escape together through the tomb of the Capulets to some far land that does not sin against the rights of youth. But now what is it all to us save a single pathetic picture of love, despair and death? The end is, indeed, even while we watch the passing scene, always much nearer to us than the beginning. Mercutio, Paris, Romeo, are dying already, when they utter their first defiant jest or tender phrase.—Scribner's.

Something He Didn't Know.

In the war with France, previous to the French revolution, an English drummer not more than fifteen years of age, having wandered from his camp to hear the French muses, was seized and brought before the French commander. On being asked who he was by the general he answered, "A drummer in the English service." This not gaining credit, a drum was sent for, and he was desired to beat a couple of marches, which he accordingly did. The Frenchman's suspicion being, however, not quite removed, he desired the drummer to beat a retreat. "A retreat, sir?" replied the youth. "I don't know what that is." The answer so pleased the French officer that he dismissed the drummer and wrote to his general commending his spirited behavior.

One Secret of Carnegie's Success.

Business rivals of Andrew Carnegie were at one time helpless to account for his ability to undersell them in whatever market they turned to. They sent experts quietly to look over his work and report. Mr. Carnegie, it is said, heard of their presence. He invited them to an inspection, with himself as guide, and at last offered to show them the secret of his success. He took them into a room lined with books and reports, where a dozen clerks were at work on documents and figures. This room represented an expenditure of $80,000 a year. "It is worth that," said Mr. Carnegie, "for a business man to know at any moment all the details of his business."—World's Work.

The Butler's Pantry.

The modern term "butler's pantry" marks the coalescence of two offices formerly distinct, when the butler, or "boteler," presided over the buttery, or "botelery," and the "panter," or "pander," over the pantry or bread closet. The duties of carver, sewer and cupbearer were held to be very honorable ones and could be discharged by men of high rank, and in great establishments the butler, the panter, the porter and the officers of all the several household departments had each his own contingent of grooms and yeomen.

Marie Antoinette's Shawl.

Marie Antoinette's lace shawl, which she gave on the scaffold to her father confessor, the Abbe de l'Orme, is still in existence. The abbe, who emigrated, left it at his death to the Prolate Strohach in Breslau. It has since passed through the hands of two or three clergymen and was finally presented to the church at Neumondorf by Pastor Heidrichs.

Where He Falls.

"It's too bad the average man can't be satisfied with a good living and not be hungry for more money."

"The average man is satisfied with a good living. The only trouble is that his idea of a good living grows with his income."—Exchange.

Croup.

Is a violent inflammation of the mucous membrane of the wind pipe, which sometimes extends to the larynx and bronchial tubes; and is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It almost always comes on in the night. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and apply Ballard's Snow Liment externally to the throat. 25c, 50c. Schuk Drug Co.

Tons of Volcano Dust.

It is stated that over 2,700,000 tons of dust ejected from the Soufriere volcano in St. Vincent have fallen on the island of Barbados. The dust, contrary to expectation, has been found to have no fertilizing value.

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered miserably for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restless sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me. I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me. "I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Miss NELLIE HOLMES, 540 No. Division St., Buffalo, N.Y.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

It's as natural for a girl to want to have beaux as for a boy to want to read time novels.

What a woman likes about frequent changes in fashions is that she has to get new clothes every time.

Every generous woman is always willing to grant a man a small allowance out of his own earnings.

Give a woman fine feathers to wear in this world and she'll trust to luck for the wings to wear in the next.

It's absolute proof to a woman that she is a good mother so her children when their uncle and aunt tell her she is spoiling them.—New York Times.

Jeffrey's Tattered Books.

The famous reviewer Jeffrey treated with disdain the bookbinder's delicate art. Books were merely meant to be read, he contended, and he was quite satisfied so long as the words were visible. Lord Cockburn laments the fact that Jeffrey's library was "for a lover of books and for one who had picked up a few, most wretched and so ill cared for that the wretch even of a few volumes never disturbed him."

Carlyle in his "Reminiscences" describes the study of his brilliant countryman as "a room; not overmuch apartment on the ground floor, with a big batz covered table loaded with book rows and paper bundles. On one or perhaps two of the tables were bookshelves, likewise well filled, but with books, in tatters, ill bound or unbound condition."

William Redmond's Answer.

William Redmond, M. P., once arose to speak in the house of commons, according to the Boston Record, and there came a question, hurled at him from the right side of the house:

"Will you vote for this bill if it comes up?"

Mr. Redmond looked from one side of the house to the other and slowly answered:

"Immediately the right side of the house burst into a storm of applause. But Mr. Redmond continued, as soon as he could be heard:

"—not!"

Then the storm came from the left side, and as soon as it subsided for a moment he completed what he started:—

"—answer that question."

And perfect silence reigned on both sides.

No Interruptions Likely.

Tired Housekeeper—There! The house is as neat as a new pin at last. I am going to take a nap. Try not to disturb me with your play, my pets. Little Brother—What shall I do if any one calls? Little Sister—No need to bother about that. No one ever calls when things are clean.

Genuine Roman Chariot.

The Graeco-Roman chariot in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, one of the new exhibits, has excited great interest among artists and archaeologists. Its preservation was due to the fact that it was buried by the ashes of Vesuvius. Many other treasures were found in the same neighborhood, some of which Baron Rothschild bought and presented to the Louvre. The chariot in question is two-thirds and is perhaps the rarest in the world.

New York and Education.

New York city is gradually drawing the strongest educators to service in public or private institutions. Columbia university has just captured Dr. John Dewey. Messrs. Atkinson, Finley, McMurtry, Gilbert, Edison, Barile and a host of others of high standing have been summoned to Gotham in the past few years. Many of them will wear themselves out in the strenuous conditions of New York life, but the fact remains that they are there and at work. If Boston were to change its superintendent the first move should be to secure one of the biggest educators of the country to fill his place.—Boston Transcript.

Church Wants the Pews.

At Kirkham parish church, England, the greater portion of the pew rents, instead of swelling the exchequer of the church, go into the pockets of private individuals, who, for the most part, do not attend the church or even reside in the district. The peculiar situation originated in 1825, when, to meet the expenses of rebuilding the church, about forty pews and a few organ seats were put up for auction and realized amounts varying from $175 to $300. The churchwardens are endeavoring to come to an arrangement with the pew owners with a view to securing a larger share of the rents for the benefit of the church.

The Bishop of London.

Dr. Ingram, bishop of London, conveys the idea of a man born to command. It has been said of him that in office days he probably would have enforced his "especial brand" of theology with a battle-axe. In his ordinary clothes he irresistibly reminds one of Sherlock Holmes on the trail—a tall aquiline nose, piercing gray eyes, lean, strong jaw and thin, curling lips. But with his subtle all the vanishes, and the bishop becomes a genial humorist, a large hearted, warm blooded man.

It Is to Laugh.

He did not look in the least like a wag, but then one cannot depend always upon appearances.

Boarding an over-filled Fifth avenue bus he edged up quietly through the crowd of standing women to pay his fare at the front. As he turned around he stooped with difficulty to reach something on the floor.

"Did any of you drop a five-dollar gold piece?" he asked, an expression of concern on his countenance.

Three men and two women hastily searched their purses and exclaimed: "Yes!"

"Well," said the finder of the coin, dropping it into the nearest outstretched palm, "here's a nickel toward the $25. You can divide it up between you."—New York Times.

The Boy and the Clock.

Lives there a boy with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, "I'll build a clock?" The common expression of the youthful clockmaker is with a worn-out or broken-down timepiece which his parents have thrown away. After tinkering at it for a week or two he gives it up in disgust. The mainspring escapes and runs all over the house. Cogs refuse to fit. Screws are lost. Now comes a man who understands the youngster's fancy for clockmaking. He has invented a take-down clock which a persistent boy of mathematical bent absolutely can put together so that it will go "tick-tack" and keep accurate time.

A Good Plea.

"Why do you wish more salary?" asked the boss. "What you are getting ought to be sufficient."

"It is sufficient for all but one item," replied the clerk.

"What's that?"

"Shoes for the children."

The old man reflected, and the memory came to him of the time when he first began to buy shoes for the youngsters.

"It's a good plea," he said. "I'll see that you get more."

For Tattooing Pigs.

Two prizes of $125 each have been offered by an agricultural society in Germany for a new pigment for tattooing black-colored pigs. The tattooing of white-colored pigs is well known and successful, but a dark color is useless for dark ears. An additional $25 is given for every year the tattoos lasts beyond the first year.

Japan Prominent in Science.

The Japanese have already done a great deal more than adopt Western science. They have materially added to it. Ilihuerto their greatest success has been in bacteriology, a study demanding the utmost patience, manual dexterity and refinement of technique, and in the records of this branch of science they take rank only below France and Germany, and well in front of Great Britain. Their first conspicuous success was the discovery of the bacillus that causes lockjaw, which was made some years ago by Kitasato, and has already been the means of saving many lives from this disease by the use of an antitoxic serum prepared from the bacilli. Shiga discovered the bacillus which is responsible for the form of dysentery which is the scourge of armies.

Federal Life Insurance.

The Russian government has elaborated statutes on general life insurance by the state. The business is to be entrusted to the governmental savings banks. All kinds of policies will be issued and the insured will participate in the profits of the business.

BEAUTY IN AN OLIVE.

It is Asserted That a Spoonful of Cures Scalds.

The olive has been applied for various medicinal purposes since the time of Moses. I hold sway over his dry-skinned subjects in northern Africa in the days of ancient Rome by the remarkable medical experts of that time to allay and cure various attacks of intermittent fever, with the rosinous gum which oozes from the tree in the hot season was used for many of the like to which I have used by the Roman statesman to soothe their heated bodies after fighting in heroic attempts to break the early records for 100-yard dashes by putting the discs or shot. The worth of the olive oil was employed in an extraordinary instance, guaranteed to stop the ravages of all ailments. Last of all, in more modern times the women of our own day use the olive oil in the form of a soap, it is beautifully the complexion by softening the pores and removing the skin itself. It is asserted upon good authority that a tablespoonful of olive oil taken internally will prevent sickness and greatly relieve the effects of the morning after. Men sometimes prefer an olive to a cherry.

Washington's Money is New.

The most beautiful money in the world, either paper or metal, is that in circulation in Washington, says the New York Herald. The bills come from the treasury every day crisp and clean, beautiful specimens of the engraver's art. The metallic currency is bright and shining from the mint. Almost all the currency paid over the counter in the cash room of the United States treasury is new. Bills that come there rolled in the least are retired and new ones issued in their stead.

In the Riggs National Bank is a commodious room in the front portion of the building, especially for the use of women customers. There is a special window also for their use in transacting business with the bank, and all checks, drafts and certificates presented for payment are always paid in the new money, either gold, silver, paper or nickel, no piece ever having before been put in circulation from the treasury, except in handling it over to the bank.
